University of Rochester Course Description:

Intellectual History of Istanbul

Thursdays August 2nd-September 20th, 2:00pm

During a series of 8 lectures, we will trace the dominant representations of Istanbul, the “city of two continents,” in historical and literary texts, in travel accounts, scholarship, cartography, documentary, visual and cinematic art, photography, and music. Textual and visual analyses will help examine the major cultural forces (from nationalism and secularism to Islam and Sufism) that define Istanbul’s urban spaces. Key concepts such as Kemalism, Neo-Ottomanism, nationalism, orientalism, Islam/Sufism, gender roles, and globalization will frame the discussions. This course will offer insight into the controversy concerning urban politics and city culture that continue to define debates in Turkey, Europe, and the Middle East today.

Dr. Sevinc Turkkan, received her PhD from University of Illinois in 2011. She is an Instructor of modern Turkish literature and history at the UR at the Department of Religion and Classics. She specializes in modern Turkish literature and culture, translation studies, and cross-cultural comparative studies with research interests in multilingualism, Turkish-German & Turkish-American literary relations, Anglophone literatures and postcolonial theory, and critical theory (psychoanalysis & gender studies). Sevinc is also a practicing translator, working languages are Turkish, German, and Bulgarian.

Lecture Information:

Egyptian Odyssey: Cairo, the Nile, and Lake Nasser

Tuesday, September 25th, 2:00pm

Cottage resident, Betty Iwan, will share photos and stories from her 2017 Road Scholar trip through Egypt. She explored pyramids, temples and tombs of Egypt and ancient Nubia in and around Cairo and along the banks of Lake Nasser and the Nile River.

Betty Iwan was born and raised in Wilmington, DE and graduated from Wellesley College with a major in Economics. She worked for more than 30 years with computers both in Ithaca and Rochester, NY before retiring in 2003. She has always maintained an active volunteer schedule both at Third Presbyterian Church and in the community. She plays English handbells, takes piano lessons, and participates in 2 books groups. She and her husband, Larry, are parents of 2 daughters and 4 grandsons who all live in the Pacific Northwest. Betty is an avid traveler having toured in the USA, Canada, Europe, Japan, Australia, Mexico, Costa Rica, Jordan, Israel, Palestine, and most recently Egypt.
